

ABSTRACT

Methods are provided for limiting channel control values, such as servo automatic gain control (AGC) values and/or servo phase lock loop (PLL) values, within respective desired ranges. Keeping such values within desired ranges improves servo demodulation robustness.